

ICC

Immediate Care Course

This highly practical course is taught over five days, covering the care of adults, children and infants and including assisting with pre-hospital emergency anaesthetic. At times you will learn alongside the fire and rescue training teams to experience realistic RTC scenarios with real vehicles.

Taught at Level 7, the course allows participants to adapt their own scope of practice to the pre-hospital environment. It will consider the complexities of the environment, resources and onward treatment pathways across a range of patient ages and presentations (medical and trauma), including mass casualty incidents. A focus will be brought to issues of human factors in the different scenarios encountered to enable the individual to work within formal multi-disciplinary emergency care teams. This will include undertaking the team leader role and will develop your leadership, decision-making and communication skills as much as your practical skills.

Specialist modules will encompass:

- pre-hospital care of the infant and the child
- assisting with a pre-hospital emergency anaesthetic

Much of this course takes part outside, come rain or shine.

Course Aims

- The ICC will allow participants to adapt their own scope of practice to the pre-hospital environment. It will consider the complexities of the environment, resources and onward treatment pathways across a range of patient ages and presentations (medical and trauma) including mass casualty incidents.
- The role of the RSI assistant will be taught and practiced within a pre-hospital context.
- Overall, a focus will be brought to issues of human factors in the different scenarios encountered so as to enable the individual to work within formal multi-disciplinary emergency care team as the team leader.

Watch these videos from our ICC Course Director to find out more about the course:

How is the courses assessed?

Why would you recommend the course to potential delegates?

When is it running?

- TBC 19-23 October, Wethersfield, Essex

Email courses@basics.org.uk to be notified when booking opens.

How much does it cost?

BASICS Members: £1295

Non-members: £1495

Course and BASICS membership: £1430

Sample Programme

Course Curriculumn

Who is it for?

For 3 years plus registered HCPs who are, or who are anticipating, providing advanced pre-hospital care in a range of environments:

- those working as a immediate care responder, as part of a pre-hospital team, in sports or event medical services, the military and those seeking to explore extending their current pre-hospital role, and
- those preparing to sit immediate care exams, such as the Diploma in Immediate Medical Care exams of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh.

Click here to find out the required prerequisite knowledge to attend this course.

International students

The course will be taught in English and will normally refer to guidelines and practice norms within the UK healthcare system.